Pediatric Residency Programs

The pediatric residency training programs offered at our children's hospital campuses in Oakland and San Francisco are designed to ensure that our residents build a solid foundation so they may effectively apply knowledge of the biological, psychosocial and epidemiological aspects of pediatric illness. We instill in our residents the highest sense of professionalism, responsibility and ethical principles, while providing them with opportunities to learn how to be advocates for the health of children and families within our society.

Subspecialty Fellowship Programs

UCSF is one of the nation's premier institutions for pediatric subspecialty training, with a rich tradition of training future leaders in academic medicine. In each of our accredited clinical fellowship subspecialty programs, fellows are provided outstanding clinical training and extensive opportunities to build skills in clinical, basic science and translational research. Each year, more than 400 residents conduct their fellowship training at UCSF's primary training sites, which include UCSF Medical Center, UCSF Benioff Children's Hospitals in Oakland and San Francisco and the Priscilla Chan and Mark Zuckerberg San Francisco General Hospital and Trauma Center.
